

My first attempt of Modern Prophecies made since the Replacement of God's Laws with those of Human Rights

I recalled an earlier vision and accompanying prophetic word received on awakening on the morning of May 21st 1985 in my book Wake Up! of the violence of mob rule and bad government laws, which in view of the discerning prophecy by Lance Lambert (whilst ministering in London on August 6th 2011), just hours before the riot started in North London. Lance said should be weighed by all church elders: -

Dusk was approaching as I parked my car, I switched off the sidelights and engine of my car A small wooden-cross was suspended from the roof lining above the windscreen, as a witness to any interested observer that the owner of this car was a Christian. I displayed my cross as other car-owners might suspend a good-luck talisman, such as an enlarged pair of sponge dice or a nodding dog. The wooden-cross began to hum and glow, changing in material and appearance (just as the tree trunk of my earliest spiritual dream referred to in this book's introduction had altered in shape and material), becoming a huge diamond that represented Christ, and having many facets which revolved slowly whilst glowing incandescently. I sat in awe, drinking in the effects of shades of colour on the slowly spinning diamond, now reflecting the lights from the illuminated row of shops, before locking the car, as I was about to purchase a take-away meal. In the shopping arcade, I negotiated my way through groups or gangs of youths of varying ages, who were loitering in their various peer groups. An unseen voice told me that some were latchkey children of working parents, or were children of one-parent families, some of whom had suffered abuse or neglect, either since their unmarried parents had separated, or because a new relationship with step or foster parent, and any children or kinfolk that a new partner had brought into the new relationship were now part of a different family grouping. Most often the mother had accepted guardianship of their child or children, whilst her partner had been the wage earner. The mother, may have been forced through circumstances, to move from a mortgaged home into a council provided home, perhaps some distance from their former home, meaning that any children of school age would have to change school and lose contact with their former friends. The parent or guardian of such children, may have existed on menial welfare benefits income. Some of the children had suffered the experience of sexual abuse through a relationship that had been forced onto them, perhaps because the custodial parent decided to end the earlier relationship, and pursuing their own selfish sexual satisfaction. It is not surprising that many such children of alienated parents, on growing into youths, failed their exams, and were unable to obtain regular paid employment. Some became addicted to alcohol, and drugs or became distributors of drugs, whilst other such disadvantaged children were 'groomed', entered prostitution; mostly both sexes may have been unemployed, and believed that opportunities were the province of other youngsters whose parents honoured their responsibilities. These gangs aimlessly passing the time, totally disinterested in pursuing sporting or educational areas that had interested them before one of their natural parents reverted to type, or perhaps a teenage girl had become associated with villains who forced alcohol into them, in order to turn them into firstly their personal 'play-partners, and then into prostitution (perhaps that how paedophilia developed. At home, they chose to stay in their bedroom, and play video games on their computers, keeping in touch with their like-minded friends through twitter and face-book etc. or by mobile phone. Increasingly many are groomed through online correspondence (through what is known as 'social-media' in 2017). These youngster's collective expectations were not high. They were sullen and resentful of correction by a parent or other figures of acceptable, responsible adult behaviour, such as school-teachers, policemen or ministers; being motivated only for personal well-being. Demonstrating behaviour that could develop on adulthood into criminal activity. Long-established godly laws that non-Christian politicians allowed to change through filibustering social engineering. Both the Freemasons, Stonewall and other non-government organisations (NGO's) may have pursued those politicians, who could influence such changes? A whispered voice advised me that some individuals from each group carried weapons, to demonstrate their willingness to enter into violence against persons, property and police authority; causing harm and distress, for which criminal offence and prosecution if caught could possibly lead to imprisonment, over which they appeared unconcerned. Some of these individuals became members of gangs, and contemptuous of the law, behaving as unruly pack-like animals (hyenas, jackals and vultures), attacking vulnerable individuals, and members of other gangs, robbing and pillaging to finance drug habits, or to buy items that being unemployed they could not afford from their welfare benefits. On returning to my car I became aware of what I mistakenly thought to be a leaflet, advertising a sale or an event, placed under my windscreen wipers. I realised that the 'leaflet' was a huge black bat, wings outstretched that had flown into the windscreen, stunning itself. A smaller bat was clinging to and biting the flesh from the body of the larger bat; shouting loudly and waving my arms wildly, the bats disturbed in their anger flew into the night sky squealing’.

I meditated on the symbolism of the vision and concluded that the larger bat represented the Church, which through its ineptitude has patently failed in its commission to oppose filibustering of proven acceptable lawful practices, but seeking righteous changes in the law for the betterment of society, which was why the bat (who could have represented the Church meekly accepted the sentence of being eaten alive for its complacency. The smaller bat represented the silent, but often resentful, underprivileged groups of law-abiding citizens, who expectantly wait for the Church to speak out on behalf of the downtrodden. The priesthood had accepted without protest the undermining of godly law, when they should have been organising peaceful mass marches, lobbying their constituent MP, or sending petitions to the appropriate minister. I was reminded that even domestic pets bite and scratch when their comfort zone is disturbed, whereas the church had proven to be too apathetic to react. Seen from inside the car (spiritually), I knew that the Cross of Christ was the key to every problem of my fellow shoppers and the groups of youths¹. Many years later I realised that the Tottenham riots of 2011 fulfilled the prophetic outcome of this spiritual dream, following that dream I received these words of prophecy: -

“Oh, foolish fallen man, why have you moved far from My righteous law? Why have you not used your wisdom to find Me? Why have you chosen to go your own way refusing to believe you cannot escape from judgement in My world? I offered you freedom but you have chosen to live in bondage and imprisonment by the consequence of your actions. Your leaders in their haste for gratification and power have promised much but accomplished little, they have deceived you. Profligate spending, by nations of limited financial resources, on weapons of mass destruction and weapon systems to defend themselves from attack, supplied by the richer Western nations, together with imposing a vaccination system of birth control which has impoverished the future of many nation, for which behaviour I hold them responsible. Oh, foolish fallen man, I offered you freedom to worship Me and to receive My blessings in return for your obedience. You have ignored My promises of blessings, yet at times of misfortune you have been quick to accuse Me of capriciousness. You have run from Me in your haste to find freedom, determined to enjoy your selfish pursuits. You cannot escape My judgement, any more than you can hide your thoughts or deeds from Me. I have decreed that righteousness and justice for the people of all nations should be of paramount importance to the leaders of the more enlightened nations. Surely you must realise that I do not take sides in times of conflict between equally unrighteously governed nations; I am appalled by secular political economic systems. Your leaders have impoverished My creation by passing popular but ungodly amendments to laws that were decreed by Me, allowing society to descend deeper into greater iniquity. My purposes and promises will be fulfilled as I have decreed. My people who live in the richer nations are obedient to My commandments and have wisely and rightly put their trust in Me despite ridicule and persecution. I hear their prayers of supplication against injustice and unrighteousness, and give generously of what they have to the poor. I will respond with retribution, for the offence of exploitation of the poverty stricken weak and persecution of My chosen ones. Am I a fleshly father who would deny his children their urgent petitions? Very soon I will return to establish the Kingdom of God over all the Earth. My heralds have already lifted trumpets to their lips to announce My arrival. All unrighteous people throughout the nations should tremble at the prospect of My return, says the Lord your God.” Many years later I still hear the sound of those bats squealing, knowing it to be the protests of the electorate, that successive governments pay only lip-service to.

Lance’s prophecy of August 6th 2011 said: -

“Hear the voice of the Lord, O Isles that I have so greatly loved and favoured. I the Lord the Almighty, I took you when you were nothing, clothed with skins and woad, and through My saving power, I made you great. When you were nothing, through My Word and your faith in Me, I lifted you and made you Great Britain. Through many awakenings and many revivals, stage by stage, I took you until you became a great power with the greatest Empire in the history of the nations. From you My Gospel and My Word went throughout the world, and tens of thousands came into an experience of saving faith! That (former, editor's inclusion) Empire, with all its many failings and weaknesses, was still one of the most just and righteous Empires of history. Those Isles of yours were soaked with the blood of My faithful martyrs and its soil received the burnt ashes of those who would not renounce My Name, My Truth, and My Word. I, the Lord have not forgotten those who gave their all for Me! But now the whole nation that I created and sustained has turned from Me. They paganise their land, state and institutions; there is no voice heard to warn the nation. False religion, the work of world rulers of darkness, cover (infest) the British Isles; A Laodicean church, neither hot nor cold, rumbles on like machinery. being a church where I am outside of its routine; its organisation and its methodology. It is Christianity without Me: Religion without Me! My being is seared with pain, for judgement is determined against your land. I can do no other. I will destroy the vestiges of her greatness; I will return her to her first estate. I will wreck her economy, destabilise her in every way. I will change her climate, even her weather. I will prove to her that the way of the transgressor is hard and terrible. I will allow demonic forces held in check erstwhile by My Word and Gospel, and the living faith of so many, to become rampant in her social life, to the destruction of her society. Will you who know Me and love Me go blind and dumb and deaf into this judgement? It is time for you who love Me, who are faithful to Me, to take action! Stand before Me and plead The Finished Work of My Son. At least cry out to Me, that there will be those who turn from darkness, from sin, and be saved. For whosoever shall call upon My Name in the midst of these judgements, I will save! It will cost you everything to stand in the gap, but you will enter into My heart, and know deep fellowship with Me. Such travail conceived in your heart by My Spirit will deeply cost you, but will end in My enthronement and Glory.

Neither prophetic word explains God's anger against a non-protesting church, and a succession of vacillating governments that seeks the power of God without His compassion for the children of broken relationships. Or the desperate situation that often arises on, or sometimes before, such neglected children reach adulthood; but I feel sure my reader will hear God's words of condemnation in both these two prophecies'. My appeal to the 'born-again' believer is to be sure of the Party you vote for adopts Biblical principles. I consider the two prophecies given years apart, firstly to me and later to Lance-26 years later to be similar in content, perhaps my reader agrees?

I recalled that the late pastor David Wilkerson, founder in 1987 of the Times Square Church, New York, also founded Teen Challenge, a Christian outreach program for troubled young people and recovering drug addicts, which in the 21st Century has grown to more than 100 centres across America. Wilkerson had prophesied along similar lines concerning the judgement of America. Most candidates of the European political parties share a common agenda with American senators; they are motivated by their own advancement in authority, and their disinterest if not hatred of Biblical Christianity, but of personal advancement, or gratification. However, I shall concentrate here on the Houses of Parliament, the civil servants of Whitehall, the judiciary, the police etc, who are badgered with blandishments from Stonewall activists, Masonic patronage, and other single-issue NGO's, all wishing to win officials over to their personal objectives, in any manner possible. Freemasonry and financial institutions have probably achieved as much success as Stonewall, but all NGO's have enjoyed success, in agitating through canvassing for the reformation of state law, which is why NGO's persist in their efforts in seeking the support of state mandarins who can further the NGO's particular objectives. For example, under-age homosexual activity in recent years resulted in imprisonment for conviction; but today, with only 1.9% of society being homosexual, homosexuality has legally been imposed on the 'straight' 98.1% of society, as being 'natural sexual behaviour', despite Leviticus Ch18:22 which states; - "You shall not lie with a male as with a woman, that is detestable." Changes in law have, granted homosexual couples the right to marry in church, and as cohabiting partners to adopt children. Since the introduction in Britain of Civil Partnership laws giving homosexuals the right to legally marry a same gender partner, only 17% of same sex marriages (34,000) have occurred (compared to 70% of heterosexual marriages), which suggests that the majority of same sex couples have since chosen not to marry their partner.²

² In June 2013, the Supreme Court in America overruled the authority of Congress (and the voting public) to define marriage as a union between a man and a woman, stating this is unconstitutional and denies the individual freedom of choice, paving the way for the USA to legalize same sex marriage, and Britain has introduced similar laws. Both national governments have withdrawn financial support from their former colonies, and other non-theocratic nations, if that current governments will not change their laws to comply with the laws America and Britain uphold.

A further concern of British heterosexuals is that the laws governing adoption have similarly changed, and Christian adoption societies, who refuse to proceed with adoption plans for same sex married partners, have had their licenses revoked. Marriage has always been seen in Britain as the most beneficial way (for any child) in which to raise children in a stable environment; but easy divorce laws, and cohabitation has meant that children in increasing numbers are the product of broken relationships. The resultant effects are more often quite disastrous and heart rending for the parents, and invariably much worse for the children. The financial cost also may only produce cold facts, but they are alarming! In Britain, the cost of breakdown in marriage in financial terms is £42,000 million pounds per year, which is compounded from each family breakdown costing the nation £23,000 per annum in support subsidies, but that does not equate with the loss of family unity and devotion to the generational stability of previously developed communities over generations.

Politicians of all political parties have ensured reformed legislation, not offering the electorate a referendum to the drastic changes to the law of democracies (previously incontestably accepted constitutional Biblical standards of morality over centuries in formerly Christian nations). Changes of law in Britain enforced by the majority all-party secular, anti-traditional marriage movement through predominance of libertarian and ecumenicalism views, amongst the 600-odd newly elected candidates imposing their personal views, or being forced to vote for an agenda they object to, by the use of a 'three-line whip' (increasingly threatened by Cabinet Ministers), which may not be the mandated views of their political party, even declaring a view, which the incumbent Cabinet had no intention of honoring, is subterfuge and unaccountable to society. Majority Cabinets of libertarian 'free-thinking' and politicians have successfully imposed 'social engineering reform' onto the electorate, which includes 'multi-cultural integration'.

Contemporary Prophetic word given by David Noakes , at East Grinstead (17 June 2017) says:-

Beloved, you are living in momentous days. These are truly the days of a turning point in the affairs of your nation. It is a time of my appointing. I have allowed you to go your own way but I have never let go of you.

There are many voices in your midst which are full of pessimism and I understand that if you look upon your circumstances, pessimism is often the outcome. But I want you to perceive as I perceive.

Beloved, when there is turmoil and upheaval, do not look upon it with dismay; do not look upon it with foreboding; do not look upon it with fear. But look upon it with eyes turned to me with a questioning heart: a heart questioning what your God is doing in the midst of it. For beloved, all these things taking place are under my hand. I have brought about a remarkable work in your nation in recent times. This is not accidental, nor is it sudden, but has come about at my appointed time.

I do not have accidents; I do not have coincidences; I do not have sudden unexpected events. I have appointed events, at appointed times, and I am the one who is seated in the heavens and does whatever He pleases. Do not lose heart, because I am in charge. My hand is on your nation and I have not given up my purposes for you.

I have blessed your nation in the past and truly you have been faithless; but beloved, I have remained faithful. Your enemy has done much to sow lies, to sow false doctrine, to try to bring down all that is good and all that is of God. But I have kept for myself a remnant. My Word remains true for all time and all eternity and I will fulfil my purposes.

This is a time of turmoil and upheaval because your adversary is in great rage and great fear. He is in great consternation that I will use your nation to tear his purposes apart. But that is exactly what I intend to do. I intend to bring his purposes crashing down. There will be turmoil and upheaval; there will be blood in the streets; there will be anxiety amongst those who do not know that God is in charge and do not understand what I am doing.

Beloved, there cannot be victory in war without war taking place; and war is indeed taking place, because I have joined battle. I have joined battle against the forces of darkness which desire to bring your nation to nothing and I have declared I will not have it so. My purposes for you are from all eternity. I have known exactly what I will do at this time. I have known exactly what I will do in the future and I purpose to glorify my name through your nation once again.

Therefore do not be disheartened. Do you think of yourself as being just a little flock? Truly there is only a small remnant who hold fast to My word. But beloved, continue to hold fast to my word and pray that the purposes that I have begun to reveal will come to fruition and fulfilment, and I will visit you afresh with my Spirit.

I will visit you afresh with my Spirit that you may be empowered: Not for your glory, but for Mine. Not to build empires but to build my Church. I desire also to visit you with my Spirit that you may be instruments in my hand to go into the fields which are ripe for harvest, and bring in a harvest; for there is a harvest waiting to be brought in.

There are many in fear and trepidation and utter confusion, and I want you to be a people who know their God and do exploits. I want you to be a people of compassion; not of judgement; not of condemnation. Judgement is mine, I will repay. But I ask you to be a people of love and concern; of compassion for the lost, and of deep desire that the truth should be brought to many who will understand it and be saved. For surely there are those whom you think are your enemies, who are longing for truth.

Do not be down-hearted, therefore. Do not be dispirited. Yes, I know all too well that you are surrounded by those who wish you ill. Beloved, do not heed them but look to your God who wishes you well. Look to your God who wishes them well. I desire a people who are willing to bless their enemies and to do good to those who speak evil about them. As you do this they will see your light. Many will reject, but many will see the light in the darkness and will desire the only light they can see. For all their plans and schemes will have fallen to the ground and then they will turn to the only truth. Do not give up therefore. Hold fast. Hold fast to Me. Hold fast to My Word. Hold fast in love and unity, to one another. Be loyal and faithful to each other. Forgive each other all offences and stand together, that as one you may show the character of your Lord and Saviour. Beloved, understand that I have not given up, and I say to you: do not give up either, but look to Me and hope in Me that I will do what I have planned.

It appears to me that you might reflect on all these prophecies, or choose those of other senior Christian figures. UNGODLY LAWS PASSED IN BRITAIN SINCE 1950

1. 1951: The Fraudulent Mediums Act (Deuteronomy Ch18:10-13) which abolished The Witchcraft Act This legalised witchcraft in Britain which had previously been banned for centuries and made all occult arts legal. Through this Act Britain allowed all kinds of spiritual activities to be acceptable. Alien spirits and witchcraft activities are offensive to God and we are severely warned against them in Scripture. In RomansCh1:23-29 Paul says that idolatry is the first step in the corruption of human civilisation which leads to "sexual impurity" and other "shameful lusts" and "every kind of wickedness, evil, greed and depravity".

2. 1959: The Obscene Publications Act (MarkCh7:21-23) was a very weak Act and had the effect of making it more difficult to prosecute pornographers, as lawyers had to prove that the publications had "a tendency to corrupt and deprave". Defense lawyers were able to ask the jury if they had been corrupted and depraved by exposure to a book, film or video. Most jurors did not want to say that they had been 'depraved'. The defense was able to claim that it was a 'public good' and an 'educational' value. The Act's Amendment in 1977 (ColossiansCh3:5-6) and The Broadcasting Act 1990 extended the law to cinema and television respectively, preparing the way for the Internet. This Act allowed all kinds of offences to be screened into our homes that certainly are an offence to God.

3. 1965: The Murder (Abolition of the Death Penalty) Act (LeviticusCh24:17-22) removed the death penalty from the Statute Book for all kinds of murder and sent a message through the nation about the social acceptability of violence.

4. 1967: The Abortion Act (Genesis Ch4:10-11). We had abolished the death penalty for murder but in 1967 we said it was acceptable to murder unborn babies. Doctors were now allowed to perform abortions if they complied with certain conditions. About 450 abortions take place daily in British hospitals, bringing to more than 6 million the number of unborn children killed since abortions became legal.

5. 1967: The Sexual Offences Act (Leviticus Ch18:22, Romans Ch1:22-27) was a further offence to God and directly against the Word of God where homosexual practices are said to be detestable to God. It decriminalised homosexual acts between consenting men over the age of 21, if done in private. (a) In 1994, the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act reduced to 18 the homosexual age of consent. (b) In 2000, the Sexual Offences (Amendment) Act equalised the age of consent for homosexual and heterosexual sex at 16. This Amendment Act was brought in against the wish of the vast majority of the population and against the stern opposition of the House of Lords. The Government used the Parliament Act, which is only to be used for extreme measures of constitutional importance, to drive this through. This virtually abolished Clause 28 and allowed homosexual acts to take place between young people of sixteen years of age and upwards. Both boys and girls were thus allowed to be exposed to paedophiles and sexual predators and children in schools were taught that all forms of sexual intercourse were allowable according to each individual's wishes.

6. 1967: The Obscene Publications Act Amendment (EphesiansCh5:4-6, Rom 13:13) further opened the way for all kinds of pornography and literature to be published of an explicit sexual nature.

7. 1968: The Theatres Act (ProverbsCh15:26, 1 ThessaloniansCh4:7) abolished 'censorship of the theatre', although the public performance of plays requires licensing, and obscene performances are prohibited. This Act allowed nudity and all kinds of explicit sexual acts on stage. The effects of this Act in removing censorship were long-lasting and soon began to have a wide effect upon the arts and media.

8. 1969: The Divorce Reform Act (MarkCh10:2-12) introduced the principle of the irretrievable breakdown of marriage as the sole ground for divorce, to be proved by adultery, unreasonable behavior, or desertion; or by two years separation with consent to a divorce, or five years separation without consent to a divorce. In other words, it opened the way for easy divorce – the floodgates were opened by this Act for widespread marriage breakdown.

9. 1972: The European Communities Act, the EC (Amendment Acts of 1986 and of 1993) (Psalm9:10,17) took Britain into the European Economic Community (EEC), and by which the Single Market and Maastricht Treaty both became law. All these measures contributed to increased political control over Britain by unelected non-nationals in Europe.

10. 1989: The Children Act (Psalm 127:3-5). Despite the good intention of this Act to increase the protection of children, it had the fundamental effect of removing the traditional concept that parents are the best judges of their children's welfare. Grandparents were no longer recognised in the kin structure of the family that were reduced to 'significant others', thus promoting the breakdown of traditional family life.

11. 1990 Amendment to the Abortion Act (JeremihahCh31, Psalm 106:37-38) reduced the age at which an unborn baby could be aborted to twenty weeks and legalised the abortion of 'disabled' babies at a much later stage than that. King David spoke about God knitting him together in his mother's womb and Jeremiah speaks about being called into ministry from the time of his conception (JeremiahCh1:5). This Act showed our society's total disregard for the principle that life is sacred as the gift of God.

12. 1990: The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act (Ecclesiasties Ch11:5) legalised the creation of embryos for experimentation or storage in laboratories. This Act also amended the Abortion Act 1967, resulting in abortion on demand for handicapped babies right up to the time of birth.

13. 1993: The Sunday Trading Act (ExodusCh 20:8-11) allowed widespread trading on Sundays which was directly against God's command to observe a Sabbath day, a day of rest each week. There was a marked increase in the number of shops opening on Sunday (20% of all shops in October 1994, and 54% by July 1999). It produced an acceleration in the closure of neighbourhood shops, an expansion of Sunday work and general increase in traffic and pollution. Sunday became just another day like any other day which inevitably weakened family life and reduced church attendance.

14. 1994: The National Lottery Act (1 TimothyCh6:10) instituted a state national lottery. It pays out 50% of its taking to winners, but is an intrinsically regressive form of voluntary taxation, as the burden falls most heavily on the poor. Further, many of the 'good cause' recipients, who receive 28% of the takings, have agendas wholly opposed to Biblical values. The National Lottery has become an obsession for millions of people wanting to get rich quick and it encourages people to gamble, often with money they cannot afford.

15. 1995: Licensing Sunday Hours Act (DeuteronomyCh12:5, Mark 2:17) virtually abolished Sunday observance and was another direct Act against the Word of God – more or less legalising anything to happen on Sundays, but with some restrictions on the number of hours that shops could open for business.

16. 1995: Removing Prohibitions on Advertisements (RomansCh1:24) legalised sexually explicit images that had previously been regarded as obscene. It marked yet another stage in the corruption of society by exposing the nation to obscenities.

17. 1996: The Family Law Act (MalachiCh2:16) replaced the five grounds for divorce in the Divorce Reform Act 1969 with a so-called 'no-fault' divorce system. The Lord Chancellor announced in 2001 that this part of the Family Law Act would not be brought into effect and would be repealed in due course.

18. 1997: The Amsterdam Treaty (Psalm 2:1-2) further eroded national sovereignty, bringing Britain increasingly under the rule of a humanist, anti-Christian code of law. This was one more step in Britain being ruled from Brussels rather than by our own elected Members of Parliament. It was selling our birthright for a mess of pottage.

19. 1999: The Finance Act (IsaiahCh61:8) scrapped the already low value of the Married Person's Allowance for the tax year 2000/2001, thereby signaling the government's lack of esteem for marriage. It was a further step towards the degradation of marriage and the breakup of family life in Britain.

20. 2001: Regulations to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 (ExodusCh23:7) permitted embryo research for developing treatments for serious diseases. Effectively, this allows cloning of human embryos and experimenting with creating human life.

21. 2004: The Civil Partnership Act (Matthew Ch19:5, EphesiansCh5:3) granted civil partnerships in the United Kingdom rights and responsibilities very similar to that of civil marriage. Civil partners have the same property rights as married heterosexual couples with the same pension benefits and social security rights. They also have the rights of parental responsibility for partner's children as well as 'tenancy' and 'next of kin' rights with a formal process for dissolving partnerships which is similar to divorce in the case of marriage.

22. 2004: The Gender Recognition Act (GenesisCh2:23, IsaiahCh5:20) granted transsexual people legal recognition as members of the sex opposite to their birth gender, either male or female. This allowed them to acquire a new birth certificate recognising their new gender within the law and allowing them to marry a person of the opposite sex. The Act required applicants to have transitioned two years before the issue of a certificate but it made no requirement for sex reassignment surgery to have taken place. The act was a further assault on God's act of creation of human beings in his own image, both male and female.

23. 2013: The Marriage (Same-Sex Couples) Act (RomansCh6-27, 1 Cor 7) redefined traditional marriage which had always been between a man and a woman. It allowed two persons of the same gender to enter into legally recognised marriage. This Act crossed a red line in British parliamentary history. It passed a law that directly contradicted God's act of creation in creating men and women as complementary human beings to be united in a faithful marriage covenant through which the physical expression of love would produce the procreation of children to ensure the health and well-being of future generations of the human race. The passing of this Act was said to be under strong duress from the European Union upon British politicians.
